Harper's BAZAAR

Issue: November 2020
Editor: Jessica Matlin
Circulation: 726,088

NEWS

HOPE IS IN THE AIR

The ultimate winter scent, Hope Night Parfum ($300) combines plum and patchouli. The vibe is sophisticated yet delicious. Even better, 100 percent of the profits benefits depression research.

FIND YOUR LIGHT

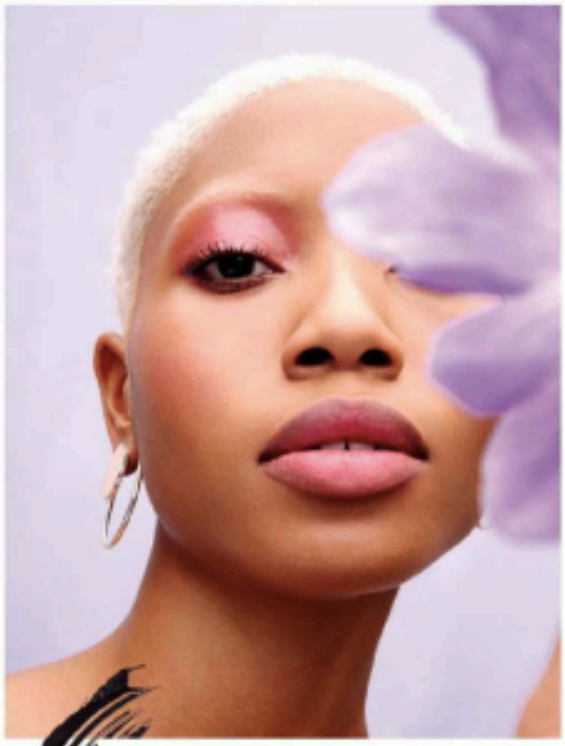

Mix INNBeauty Project Face Glaze ($24) with your moisturizer or makeup to get a glow, without sparkle. Another reason we love this new brand? Every item sold funds the removal of plastic from oceans and landfills.

HEATING THINGS UP

T3 debuts a smarter, gentler hot tool with Curl ID ($235), a curling iron that automatically adjusts the level of heat depending on your hair's texture, length, and even color treatment.

GOING THE DISTANCE Lash-growing serums have been trendy, but Talika pioneered the category in 1948, when an ophthalmic nurse discovered that the plant-based cream she formulated for burns on the eye contour also stimulated lash growth. The result: Lipocils, the cult botanical lash serum. Now Talika has created Lipocils Mascara ($35), shown to boost length by almost 30 percent in two months.

OUT OF AFRICA

Born in Madagascar, Dr. Stephan Helary has long had a passion for studying the power of indigenous botanicals, and Terres d'Afrique is the culmination of that research. These rare, responsibly sourced ingredients can be found in its spa-worthy products like Light Facial Cream ($85) and Calming Cleanser ($45).

AT YOUR FINGERTIPS

More time indoors means more opportunities to master the at-home manicure. Peacci, a new brand out of the U.K., delivers rich, long-lasting polish in just one coat ($12.50). Another must-have: Peacci's at-home gel removal kit ($26.50). ■

By Jessica Matlin

SEE WHERE TO BUY FOR SHOPPING DETAILS